Councils oppose paying for police

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Minden and Stanhope have joined the growing number of municipalities in Ontario which want the province to keep providing police service.

Last week the two councils passed resolutions supporting the Township of Orillia's position that responsibility for police service should not be passed from the province to rural municipalities in Ontario.

Orillia was reacting to a presentation made to the Ontario Solicitor General by the Ontario Association of Police Service Boards, in which the association suggested that the cost of OPP policing should be transferred to local governments.

Currently, rural municipalities with small populations, like Haliburton County, are not charged for the police coverage provided by the OPP.

Other municipalities either have their own police forces or pay the OPP, on a contract basis, to provide coverage. Recently some municipal politicians in the province have said that all municipalities should be required to pay for police service.

In March, Orillia council passed a resolution stating that "the cost of policing in Ontario is quite clearly a provincial responsibility and should be paid for by the province." This resolution has been circulated to non-urban municipalities for support.

Both Stanhope and Minden councils unanimously passed resolutions similar to the one passed by Orillia.

Hart Lodge owner runs into financial trouble

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The holding company which owns Minden's Hart Lodge has run into severe financial troubles, sending one of its six Ontario resorts into receivership.

Granite Tourism Corp. announced last week that the Windermere House in Muskoka had been placed in receivership after the company failed to refinance $1.8 million worth of debts.

The company has not mentioned the impact of the crisis on Hart Lodge or any of the other resorts. The company also owns the Gananoque Inn in the Thousand Islands and the Benmiller Inn near Goderich.

According to the Financial Post,

Granite lost $7.5 million in the year which ended April 1991.

The company purchased Hart Lodge last summer and had planned to develop a subdivision on the property behind the resort buildings.

Granite President Wallace Stonehouse says cash flow has been squeezed by the recession and the company has taken writedowns on asset values.

The 127-year-old Windermere House has been placed under the control of Harold Brief and Associates, a Toronto-based accounting firm. The resort will continue to operate under current management until a buyer can be found.

Bunny buddy

Kay Stephen was joined by the Easter Bunny as she led a sing-along during last Wednesday's Bunny Hop Tea at the Zion United Church. After participants sang a number of old time songs, the bunny (Doreen Bullied) collected donations for the Telcare hotline, which helps people who are lonely, in crisis or depressed.

Junior Kindergarten was developed for urban areas

by Susan Grober

There is much controversy over the Ministry of Education's mandatory initiative to have Junior Kindergarten available by 1994.

While many feel it's a worthwhile program, others aren't sure it's appropriate for an area such as Haliburton County, where most four-year-olds will have to be bused to school.

Another major problem is the cost. With boards currently struggling to keep expenses down, how can they afford to implement such a costly venture?

There are many different sides to the issue, but one person able to understand all aspects is Sherborne Reeve Ross Rabjohn. Rabjohn is a former employee with the Hamilton Board of Education, which started one of the first Junior Kindergarten programs.

The board started the program after following the initiative of a United States' study of people in poverty-stricken areas. The Hamilton board conducted a study of the north end, which is an industrial area, and found there were more drop-outs in that end of the city.

Through the results of the study, it was discovered that, on average, students in wealthier areas have a 5,000 to 6,000 word vocabulary upon starting school, while students in the poor areas start with a 2,000 to 3,000 word vocabulary.

"It was found that the homes didn't have magazines, newspapers, or any reading materials, and the kids didn't have any experience with traveling," says Rabjohn.

So the board chose six schools in the most deprived areas to start the Junior Kindergarten program. "They brought the kids to school early, and exposed them to reading materials, took them on trips, and took them to the library as well," says

Rabjohn.

"As long as parents brought the kids in and took them home, the program could run. The parents were also invited to sit in on the classes and talk with the teachers. Hopefully, they learned some good parenting skills."

Junior Kindergarten was started "really as a type of catch-up program" for children, says Rabjohn, adding that the board was careful not to label the students in the poor areas.

Gradually, the neighbouring schools learned of the program's merits, and asked: "How come we don't get it?"

"Before long, the whole city had the program, and it just grew," Rabjohn says.

After the baby boom, many people had just one or no children, so chances were each of these kids was "the only child on the block."

Junior Kindergarten proved to be an excellent way to provide these young children with an opportunity to interact with others and learn social skills.

"That applied to even the better parts of the city," says Rabjohn. "Parents were either both out working, or just wanted a break for a few hours, or took part in the classroom. It was a lot of good socialization that went on there, both for the children and the parents."

Rabjohn was introduced to Junior Kindergarten about 25 years ago, when he was appointed as principal of a school which featured the program.

Rabjohn feels the Junior Kindergarten program was very successful.

"We tried to study it after 10 years of the program," he says. We figured a good many of these children should be in Grade 5. But when we looked into it, we only had two children who had started with Junior Kindergarten."

Rabjohn says part of the problem is mobility, as many of the children who were in the program had since moved from the area.

"The conclusion was we thought it was a wonderful program, but how could you study that?"

Recently, the Peel board made a controversial decision to drop its Junior Kindergarten program in order to cut costs. Minister of Education Tony Silipo condemned the decision, calling it a step backward.

But the board maintains that it is being forced to cut costs, especially since the province is has decreased its funding to school boards.

Although he is a great proponent of Junior Kindergarten, Rabjohn says he can understand why the Peel board decided to drop it.

"It's all very well for the provincial government to say we need Junior Kindergarten. But are they going to fund it? No.

"For boards that don't have Junior Kindergarten now, maybe the time has come to say, 'Look, we just can't afford it.'"

Rabjohn realizes that many parents want Junior Kindergarten, but those same people don't want an increase in their education taxes.

"How do you make both sides meet?" he asks. "If the parents want to really cut the education taxes, you have to cut some of the programs.

"I suppose the only other thing you can do is go after teachers' salaries, because that's 85 per cent of the budget," says Rabjohn. "But then you're simply going to get strikes, and you're going to get schools closing down."

Also, Rabjohn points out that teachers go through many years of university and preparation. "Goodness, if you're going to go through all that, you're going to expect a decent salary."

Rabjohn feels it should be left to each board to decide whether Junior Kindergarten is right for the area.

And he doesn't feel there should be Junior Kindergarten in Haliburton County. During his 36 years in the education field, he worked with deaf and hard of hearing children who started a special program at the age of six months.

"A lot of the four-year-olds had to travel by bus," he says. "It was a long day for those kids, even if it was a half-day. They woke up early to get ready for school, spent an hour on the bus, two-and-a-half hours in school, and then another hour on the bus home.

"That's a long, long trip for a little kid. And for those in the afternoon group, how are they going to get an afternoon nap in?"

Aside from Junior Kindergarten, there are so many other programs to consider. Along with reading, writing, and arithmetic, schools have library, physical education, computer, and special education programs.

School programs providing information on AIDS, alcohol, smoking, and sex are all beneficial, but they cost money.

"We just have to sort out what our priorities are, what the parents are responsible for, and what the schools are responsible for."

Lions Club plans toll booth

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The Minden and District Lions Club is hoping to convert high traffic volumes during the Victoria Day long weekend into a fundraising gold mine.

The club has received permission from Minden council to establish a voluntary toll booth on Main Street on Saturday, May 16, to collect donations from motorists passing through the village.

Members Paul Norry and Scott Moore met with council at last Thursday's meeting to present the proposal.

Norry said the Lions are looking for new fundraising ideas to financially support the club's projects in the area, especially the commitment to help pay for the community centre expansion.

The toll booth would involve members of the club asking drivers to pay a cash donation. Those who choose to contribute will be given a ribbon or ticket to place on their car so they won't be asked a second time.

Norry said there will be signs out explaining the event and the members will be dressed in club vests and hats to identify themselves.

Councillor Jean Anthon said the idea has already been accepted by the downtown merchants at the most recent meeting of the BIA.

Reeve Bern Berry suggested the club consider having members dress in the clown costumes which are worn during parades and community events.

The Fenelon Falls Lions Club has held similar events which have raised as much as $4,000 during a single day.

New coordinator Kate Reed

Facing the challenge of long-term care

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Haliburton County's new long-term care coordinator says, because of the emotions generated by the chronic care issue in the county, she will have to work from a solid base of facts.

"My role right now is getting out to the agencies and getting out to the facilities to see what's out there, and getting a base of information to work from," says Kate Reed. "I can't fly by the seat of my pants, especially with the emotion that's out there."

Reed, whose official title is Development Coordinator for Long-term Care and Related Services for Haliburton County, began her job about six weeks ago.

Working out of an office in Haliburton Village, she will work on the development and implementation of social and health services in Haliburton County, with the planning and development committee which is currently being formed.

The committee, which will consist of three service providers, three municipal politicians and six people from the general public, will implement the reforms to Haliburton's long-term health, housing and social services.

Although the committee members have been chosen, they have to be appointed by the District Health Council before the names are released. Committee members should begin meeting within the next couple of weeks.

The first issue the committee tackles will be the establishment of new long-term care beds, says Reed.

It was the issue of the proposed construction of an 18-bed chronic care facility at the Haliburton Hospital which acted as a catalyst for the review of the county's long-term care services.

Construction of the addition was approved by Ontario's previous Liberal government, but the project was later put on hold by the ministry of health which sponsored a comprehensive study of the county's long-term health, housing and social service needs.

The report which resulted from that study, called the Haliburton County Community Directional Plan, made recommendations relating to the reform of long-term care in the county.

Among the recommendations was a call for the creation of 40 additional long-term beds to be split between the villages of Minden and Haliburton.

Last October, the provincial NDP government accepted the directional plan and approved the creation of up to 30 beds. The announcement included the promise of $2.3 million for capital costs.

Reed says the planning committee will have to decide the specific details of establishing the new beds.

"The committee will have to decide where the beds should go, and how much they will cost," she says. "They will have to brainstorm different options, cost them out and present them to the public at focus groups. We will provide the community with an opportunity to say where they feel the beds should go."

Before any decisions are made, Reed says the committee members will have to spend some time familiarizing themselves with the Directional Plan and going through an education phase.

There are members from the steering committee which developed the plan on the implementation committee to provide continuity to the issue.

Although dissolving the steering committee and forming a new committee to implement the recommendations from the Directional Plan might seem like a step backward, Reed says it's important to get new people involved in the reform process.

"It's a small community, and we don't want to overwork anyone. The steering committee fulfilled its objectives, and it's nice to get different input."

She says the new committee will not be repeating the work of the steering committee, but will be picking up where it left off.

"We don't want to re-invent the wheel. We're going to build on what's existing."

Reed describes her role as acting as an anchor between the community and the government ministries involved in the reform process. She will serve as a resource person for the implementation committee and keep the members informed about provincial initiatives.

"Things change, and we have to be flexible enough to change with the times," she says. "Part of my responsibility is to stay on top of the provincial redirection of long-term care so Haliburton's redirection will keep moving in a parallel way."

Kate Reed is the new coordinator of long-term care in Haliburton County. She will be working with the planning and development committee to implement the recommendations of the Directional Plan.

Because of the work that has already been done with the development of the Directional Plan, Haliburton County is ahead of the rest of Ontario when it comes to long-term care reform.

"When the provincial mandates come in, Haliburton will be one step closer," says Reed. "The transition will be easier and smoother because we already have the base framework. We won't have to start from scratch."

Although she has only recently moved to the county, Reed is aware of the controversy which surrounds the health care issue and she is determined to keep an open mind.

"I'm coming in with an objective point of view, and I won't let myself be influenced by anyone. I want to see first hand what's happening," she says. "I recognize the frustration and anger in people, and I don't want to minimize that to any degree."

Reed is eager to become a member of the community and does not want to be seen as a representative of the province or a ministry bureaucrat.

"I'm trying hard to be seen as a link between the community and government, but I'm more on the community's end of things than on the government end of things. The whole reason for having a development coordinator is to have someone in the community, not someone working from Peterborough."

Reed's experience as a registered nurse gives her experience in the health system and she also has an interest in social service. Before coming to Haliburton, she worked with the Muskoka employment training centre in Huntsville as a life skills coach. Originally from a farming community near Guelph, Reed says she understands the challenges which face rural areas of the province.

"My career goal is to incorporate social services with health care, so they are not two separate entities. This job is a perfect opportunity to do that."

Minden planning birthday bash

by Susan Grober

Oh Canada, get ready for a fun summer.

At least two events are being planned in Minden this summer to celebrate Canada's 125th birthday, and 16 people turned out at the Minden Legion last Thursday to share their ideas.

On Sunday, June 14, a family picnic will be held at the fairgrounds. Organizers Carol Miles and Autumn Davis are hoping for a full afternoon of fun and games for young and old alike.

"We're going back to the old-fashioned family picnics of 100 years ago," explained Miles.

The event will allow people to pack their lunches, bring blankets and lawn chairs, and meet and greet their neighbours for this free event.

"The whole purpose is to provide people with a form of family entertainment that doesn't cost them anything," said Davis. "They don't need to have a wad of money in their pocket to have a good time."

Already, the pair has received verbal support from several members of the community who want to help with activities. Davis said the excellent response from the community has been encouraging.

"In these hard economic times, it's more important now than ever that people get together to celebrate the good things we share as Canadians," she said. "Instead of complaining about what's wrong with Canada, we should look at the positive aspects."

A separate series of events will be held on July 1st. Speaking on behalf of the BIA (Business Improvement Area), Lisa Connolly said there are a number of activities the group hopes to hold on this day. These include:

- a dunk tank "where you can get your favourite teacher or police officer and throw a ball and dunk them";
- a baseball tournament for kids;
- a fireworks display, with the cost split between the BIA, Minden council and the fire department;
- lapel pins with the Canada 125 logo, to be purchased and distributed by the BIA;
- several teams of horses to take people to different activities in the village;
- demonstrations by members of the equestrian club.
- a grand opening of the renovated Minden Community Centre.

Another planned project with the Canada 125 theme is to have a sub-committee choose a new postcard for Minden.

Already, a fall scenic photographed from the lookout by Shirley Jenkins-Duff has been chosen, said Connolly.

But in May, the BIA wants to kick-off a photo contest for local amateurs, who can take pictures "right through to the dog sled races" and compete for first, second and third place.

The BIA also talked to Gord Monk, who organizes the Crazy Craft Race which is also held on July 1st, to see if the participating rafts could all feature the words Canada 125.

Connolly would like to see some sort of a Canadian flag promotion. During the Archie Stouffer Elementary School Olympics, Connolly said she and Wendy Ladurantaye waved the kids on with Canadian flags, and she feels they really enjoyed it. "I think Canadians need to get a little more patriotic," she said.

A number of other people at the meeting also offered input on activities they could provide for either event.

Representing Hyland Crest Senior Citizens' Home, Muriel Harrington of the Ladies Auxiliary said it would be great for some of the residents to take part.

She said Doris Robertson has an idea to hold an open house, with auxiliary members dressing up in costumes and serving tea and sandwiches, and residents who are a century old or older talking about the changes over the last 100 years.

Harrington also pointed out that the residents can travel to the events by bus.

Minden Legion Branch 636 President Dave McAdam suggested that its monthly trivia night could have a Canadian theme in honour of the celebration.

He also said he would look into whether the Haliburton Legion Pipe Band will be available to perform at either event.

Representing the Kinette Club, Sue Ripley suggested that horseshoe pitching would be an ideal event for men at the family picnic. "A lot of men don't like to do anything but stand around and pitch horseshoes," she said.

Peter Overington said: "Provisionally, the Legion will take over the horseshoes event."

It was also recommended that area people who own antique vehicles could get together for a display. Miles said she will contact a number of people, and Peter Overington of the Haliburton County Snowmobile Association said if things work out he'll look into having antique snowmobiles on display.

Agricultural Society Director Shirley Cox said the barn at the fairgrounds could be used during the family picnic to hold a yard sale, as well as other activities such as face painting and a story time for kids.

Davis said Faith Aggett will try to get the local Highland Dancers to perform, and have the Girl Guides sell lemonade for 25 cents.

"We want to get as much local talent as we can," said Davis.

Archie Stouffer Elementary School Principal McKay Brydon said he will consider how to promote the events through the school. He suggested that banners could be hung in the school, to alert both students and parents to what's going on.

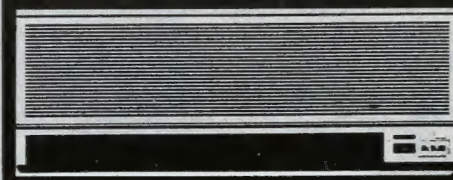

There will be two separate meetings to further organize both events, and members of the public who wish to lend a hand are welcome to attend.

Organizers of the June 14 family picnic will meet upstairs at the Minden Legion on Wednesday, April 22, at 7:30 p.m.

Organizers of the July 1st celebration will meet at the same location on Monday, May 4 at 7:30 p.m.

One more dose of winter

Instead of planting blubs or shagging flies last weekend, resident of Haliburton County found themselves digging out from a heavy snowfall.

Area hit with snowfall

Just as people's thoughts were turning to baseball, beaches and barbecues, Old Man Winter made an encore appearance in Minden.

Most of Central Ontario woke up Saturday morning to find a everything covered in a deep blanket of fresh snow.

Minden weather watcher Phil Graham

says the village received 8.5 inches of the white stuff. He says people shouldn't be surprised by this last gasp of winter.

"You can figure on something like this every year, between the first and the tenth of April," he said. "It should be the last of this foolishness."

Graham said the amount of the snowfall didn't set any records but the depth was above average.

The Minden OPP reported only two accidents on Saturday, both cases were vehicles slid off the road. The police said that, for the most part, people seemed to be staying home and avoiding the road conditions.

Contest will find out what Canada means to you

What does Canada mean to you?

This year, our country is celebrating the 125th anniversary of Confederation and a national celebration, called Canada 125, is being planned.

We at The Times would like to know how you feel about our country and what it means to you to be a Canadian, so we are sponsoring an essay, poem and photo contest with the theme "My Canada".

We are not asking anyone to rewrite the Constitution or solve the unity issue, we just want you to express your thoughts, either in words or images, on why Canada is important.

The essay and poem contests are being divided into three categories each, one for children aged 12 years and younger, one for students aged 13 to 19 and one for adults aged 20 and older. There is a limit of 1000 words on essays and 200 words for poems.

The photo contest is open to non-professionals of all ages and both black and white and colour photos will be accepted. Please include a brief written description of your photo and the reasons why it represents Canada.

Winners will be determined by a panel of judges from the community. The top three entries in each category will be determined and all entries will be published in a special section of the newspaper during the week of July 1.

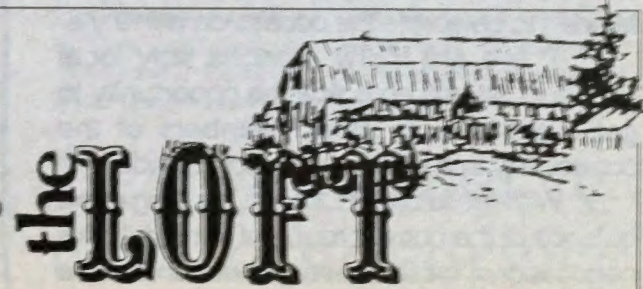

The deadline to have your photos, essays and poems into The Times office is Friday, May 29, 1992 at 5 p.m.

If you have any inquiries regarding the contest, contact Jay Kerr-Wilson at The Times, 286-1288.

"We want to get as much local talent as we can," said Davis.

Archie Stouffer Elementary School Principal McKay Brydon said he will consider how to promote the events through the school. He suggested that banners could be hung in the school, to alert both students and parents to what's going on.

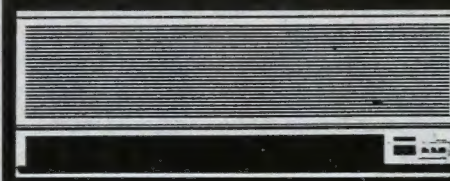

There will be two separate meetings to further organize both events, and members of the public who wish to lend a hand are welcome to attend.

Organizers of the June 14 family picnic will meet upstairs at the Minden Legion on Wednesday, April 22, at 7:30 p.m.

Organizers of the July 1st celebration will meet at the same location on Monday, May 4 at 7:30 p.m.

One more dose of winter

Instead of planting blubs or shagging flies last weekend, resident of Haliburton County found themselves digging out from a heavy snowfall.

Area hit with snowfall

Just as people's thoughts were turning to baseball, beaches and barbecues, Old Man Winter made an encore appearance in Minden.

Most of Central Ontario woke up Saturday morning to find a everything covered in a deep blanket of fresh snow.

Minden weather watcher Phil Graham

says the village received 8.5 inches of the white stuff. He says people shouldn't be surprised by this last gasp of winter.

"You can figure on something like this every year, between the first and the tenth of April," he said. "It should be the last of this foolishness."

Graham said the amount of the snowfall

didn't set any records but the depth was above average.

The Minden OPP reported only two accidents on Saturday, both cases were vehicles slid off the road. The police said that, for the most part, people seemed to be staying home and avoiding the road conditions.

Contest will find out what Canada means to you

What does Canada mean to you?

This year, our country is celebrating the 125th anniversary of Confederation and a national celebration, called Canada 125, is being planned.

We at The Times would like to know how you feel about our country and what it means to you to be a Canadian, so we are sponsoring an essay, poem and photo contest with the theme "My Canada".

We are not asking anyone to rewrite the Constitution or solve the unity issue, we just want you to express your thoughts, either in words or images, on why Canada is important.

The essay and poem contests are being divided into three categories each, one for children aged 12 years and younger, one for students aged 13 to 19 and one for adults aged 20 and older. There is a limit of 1000 words on essays and 200 words for poems.

The photo contest is open to non-professionals of all ages and both black and white and colour photos will be accepted. Please include a brief written description of your photo and the reasons why it represents Canada.

Winners will be determined by a panel of judges from the community. The top three entries in each category will be determined and all entries will be published in a special section of the newspaper during the week of July 1.

The deadline to have your photos, essays and poems into The Times office is Friday, May 29, 1992 at 5 p.m.

If you have any inquiries regarding the contest, contact Jay Kerr-Wilson at The Times, 286-1288.

A party is just what we need

This year marks the 125th anniversary of Confederation and plans are underway in Minden to celebrate the occasion with style.

There are many reasons why local residents should embrace the opportunity to get together with other members of the community in a display of national pride.

With the future of Canada hanging in the balance of the current round of constitutional negotiations, citizens everywhere should be sending politicians a strong signal that out nationhood is something we value and is not to be gambled with.

As a country, we tend not to participate in loud displays of patriotism, but surely if there was ever a time in our history when such a display is needed it is now.

Closer to home, the county is emerging from a winter marked by tough economic times and we could all use a community celebration to shake off the effects of the recession.

The kind of family-oriented, old-fashioned, inexpensive events being planned for June 15 and July 1 should provide a welcome tonic and give us all something to cheer about.

We challenge all residents of the county to think about how they can contribute to the Canada 125 celebrations and what they can do to foster a community spirit.

Canada needs to clown around a little more

The best political slogan I've read in years was on one of those mobile illuminated billboard things you often see in front of hardware stores and donut shops advertising "specials". The one I saw was standing in a parking lot in front of a convenience store in the tiny south-western Ontario town of Acton. The message on the billboard read:

Lighten up Canada! Wear a red nose!

Indeed, I can think of no better doctor's prescription for this sad, confused and sullen country than to have each and every citizen don one of those red clown noses for a day. I'd love to turn on my TV and see Peter Mansbridge and Lloyd Robertson delivering the news from behind red clown noses. I want to see a clown nose on Karen Kain when she dances; on Wayne Gretzky when he scores; on K.D. Lang when she sings; on Karen Lee-Gardner the next time she wins the World Downhill.

I want to see Mulroney and Parizeau go clown-nose-to-clown-nose over Quebec sovereignty.

And I'd pay big money to turn on 100 Huntley Street and catch David Manse pontificating piously behind a big red nose.

It is, alas, not going to happen. Canada is a country that takes itself far too solemnly at the best of times.

And these are far from the best of times.

Instead of the marvellous cathartic purging of a coast to coast Wear A Red Nose Movement, we are doomed to be subjected to more yammering from Quebec, more stammering from Ottawa, more hammering from the GST, spruce budworm, chlorofluorocarbons, Preston Manning speeches and probably, the way our luck is running, a nation-wide epidemic of Jock Itch.

And those of us who like to think we still possess a grain or two of sanity? What can we do to protect our meagre, dwindling cache of functioning brain cells?

Go fishing, Canada. Get drunk. Make love. Go bowling. Buy yourself a sexy tank top. Dust off your guitar and write a love song. Tell your boss a joke.

But mostly...lighten up a little, any way you can.

I already know what I'm going to do. I'm going to sit (more on page 7)

Photos of hockey players give new meaning to rerun

Editor:

As I read the March 30, 1992 edition, I chuckled at the letter from Jim Hicks which referred to his "mutilated" letter to the editor he had submitted in the previous week's paper. I chuckled even more when I turned to page eighteen and read the notes under the picture of David Dollo making a presentation. It was obvious to me that it was not Jarret Rowden, it was not a Coca Cola hockey sweater that was being presented. Actually, one out of three is not even a very good average since the only thing correct was that it was David Dollo.

When I read the paper of April 6, 1992 I expected to see a correction, but no, what I did find was the same picture with a new description which included David Dollo again but this time the rest of the information was correct. How about admitting the error and printing the correct picture! I wonder if this is an effort by your paper to recycle by using the same picture twice.

By the way, just out of a personal interest, how much of your paper is printed on recycled paper? The Toronto Star usually prints which sections are on recycled paper. Maybe you could keep us informed on how many pages are printed on recycled paper. (Please do not include pictures you have used twice or more!)

M.J. (Mike) Maher
Minden.

(Publisher's note: As you can see from this and last week's editions, both players have received the recognition they deserve. The Times has a standing order with our printer to use recycled newsprint whenever possible. However, since the demand for recycled newsprint is so high, and production facilities have yet to satisfy that demand, it is still difficult to obtain a ready supply of paper with a recycled content. The Times prides itself in being environmentally sensitive. We have recently eliminated a typesetting process which involved caustic chemical compounds and photographic paper which was less "friendly" to the environment than the process now in place. Within our office, we have instituted a number of recycling programs which have reduced our consumption of non-renewable resources and ensures we recycled as much as possible.)

School play was well done

Editor:

On Thursday, April 2nd and Friday, April 3rd we were privileged to see the H.H.S.S.'s drama club's production of A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum. We want to take this opportunity to congratulate them on a job well done. The whole production company did a fine job. It was a pleasure to see teachers and students working together and enjoying each other. The acting, the costumes, the sets, the make-up, the printed programme, and the lighting and sound were all impressive. It was great to watch how the actors on stage were helping each other. We were impressed with the way the actors handled two interruptions to the Thursday night performance.

Congratulations Mr. Wayne Cooper and company on a job well done.

Legions deserve credit for service

Editor:

It was most gratifying to see a photo of Al Jopling, President of the Kinmount Legion, Branch 441, with a donation of money being presented to the Minden Hospital.

Very recently another donation of a heart defibrillator was donated by the Minden Legion, Branch 636. I feel very strongly that both these Legions should receive top billing in our newspapers. They are the ones who show their concerns in our community and deserve front page coverage. In fact other organizations in our community should also receive the same recognition.

I am not a Legion member, but I also believe in fairness and applaud the good works of these organizations, as they represent being our Brothers keepers.

Some unusual suggestions for reform down and wait for my next edition of Prosebust.

Prosebust is a quarterly newsletter put out by B & B Editorial Consulting Limited. As a general rule, editorial consultants aren't known for their levity and wit, but they must be a rather special crew at B & B. Get a load of Prosebust's front-page "modest proposals for constitutional solutions":

...Quebec shall have the right to leave Confederation as soon as it finds a suitable person to sublet to. Quebec will still have to come around every once in a while to pick up its mail.

...After Quebec leaves, the remaining provinces shall have a year to sleep around before they have to commit to any new relationships.

...The House of Commons shall be moved to Winnipeg and all deliberations shall take place in the winter at the corner of Portage and Main. This will speed up legislation tremendously.

...To cut translation costs, all government communications to the public shall to one of two statements:

- Give us money.
- Stop doing that.

The Prosebust newsletter is only four pages long and it comes out of Ottawa. It's like a zephyr of fresh air in that boundless ocean of hot gas about constitutional reform, sovereignty referenda, senatorial asymmetry and all those other "issues" Canadians have come to know and loathe.

That's the good news. The bad news is that Prosebust is a quarterly. There won't be another edition for about three months.

I'm already waiting. That's me sitting on the Post Office steps.

Wearing a red nose.

Bunker wins again

Local artist Merv Bunker has won the People's Choice award at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery Best of Member's Show for the second year in a row.

Bunker's intricate wood carving of a horse-drawn wagon earned more votes than any other artist's work.

Doreen Berry presented Bunker with his prize and said almost 200 ballots were filled out in this year's competition. She said quality and quantity of the work entered in the show made it the best such event ever.

Bunker bashfully accepted his prize, saying he didn't enter for the recognition. "I just like whittling," he said.

The Gallery's next big project is the summer festival during the first weekend of July. This year the festival will include a seniors' show in the community centre.

Bernie Davis displays the paper and model she prepared for her Canadian studies Bioregionalism course at Trent University.

Trent students host open house at museum

Bernie Davis was one of 22 students in the Bioregionalism course at Trent University this year who held an Open House at the Haliburton Museum on Sunday, April 5th. The course, which is part of the Canadian Studies program at Trent, focusses on Haliburton County. The students were on hand to discuss their papers and projects with county residents.

Bernie is the only person to have taken the course so far who actually lives in the county. In addition to her paper, entitled Two-Way Communication as an Integral Component of the Methodology for Studying Bioregionalism, she also displayed a three-dimensional model of the communications process she would like to see implemented so that the course can provide maximum benefit for the county.

Another of the student projects was a video produced by Richard Roth with the assistance of the students in the Theatre Arts course at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School. The video and all the papers are available at the Haliburton Highlands Museum for anyone to use.

Zion UCW Bunny Tea

by Susan Grober

It was a hippity-hoppity happy time when 79 women turned out for a Bunny Hop Tea on Wednesday at the Zion United Church in Carnarvon.

A number of the United Church Women took part in a unique fashion show, wearing a variety of creative Easter bonnets, including one which featured dried buns on a bread basket.

The women also took part in a sing-along before enjoying tea, cookies, and other goodies. And the Easter Bunny made a special appearance to greet people, and later collected donations to cover the expenses of the event, and to fund the Telecare hotline, which helps people in distress.

The next event at the church will be the Seniors' Dinner, to be held this Tuesday, April 14, at 12 noon.

To attend, you must phone to reserve a meal by Monday (today) at noon, by contacting either Mabel Russell at 489-2626 or the Haliburton County Home Support Services office at 457-2941.

Tickets for a hot meal featuring soup, juice or salad, meat and hot vegetables are $6. Afterwards, the seniors will play cards.

Minden second in karate grand prix

A competitor at the April 5 Junior Grand Prix karate tournament is judged as she performs a kata, a routine of pre-determined karate moves. The Minden club, which sponsored the event, placed second in the competition.

Hydro novices beat Cannington, take consolation championship

The Ontario Hydro Novice "C" have captured the consolation Championship by defeating Cannington in a best 2 out of 3 series.

It was a comeback series for Minden as their backs were against a wall after Cannington won the first game 4-1. Jamie Colliss scored the lone goal for Minden.

The tables turned in game two, as the boys tied the series at one game a piece with a big 4-2 victory.

Minden opened the scoring at 6:37 of the first as Andy Kinsman sent Jamie Colliss a dandy pass at the blue line and Jamie found the corner to beat Cannington's goalie just one minute later. Cannington tied it up on a break away; but Nicholas Mitchell and Jamie Colliss sent precision passes ahead to Andy Kinsman who skated past Cannington's offence to give Minden a lead they would never relinquish.

In the second period there was tight defence and goaltending for both teams, but finally Andy Kinsman scored at 1:56 from Jamie Colliss and Adam Tomlinson.

Cannington added one more at 4:07 of the third, but Andy Kinsman earned his hat trick with just 54 seconds left as hard-working teammate Jamie Colliss sent him a pass in the slot. The team then

The hard work of Minden Shotokan Karate paid off last week when the club came in second at a tournament held at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School.

Hundreds of participants from karate clubs across the province took part in the Ontario Junior Grand Prix tournament, sponsored by Minden Shotokan Karate, last Sunday at the high school.

"I'm happy with all of you," Abraham told his students last Wednesday. "You did the best of best."

A Belleville karate club came in first at the tournament.

"Those kids have lots of experience," Abraham said of the Belleville participants. "Oh, they're strong."

Minden Shotokan Karate has only been operating two years, so its second place standing was a great feat.

A total of 14 medals were won by the Minden club members. And three of the local competitors — Carrie Warder, Lisa Cowen and Marc MacKinnon — earned two medals each.

Minor baseball season just around the corner

by Susan Grober

The Blue Jays' winning streak in the Major Leagues last week should have everyone geared up for the start of baseball season.

With the Minden Minor Baseball Association getting ready for its third year, any aspiring Kelly Grubers, Tom Henkes or Roberto Alomars have until the end of this week to register.

Although registration has already been completed, the association will take more until the end of this week.

More than 300 kids are registered, and there will be 26 teams this year, the same number as last season. "So we're really pleased again with the response," says the association's treasurer, Russ Duhaime.

Still, there will be a few changes this year, he says. The season has been shortened from 11 weeks to 10, "so that parents will have an opportunity in August to take their vacation without screwing up the baseball season."

Also, the league has dropped its rates for registration, down to $12 per player, or $20 for each family.

"We're recognizing the hard economic times, and we had a little bit of money left over from the previous year," explains Duhaime. "Also, now that our equipment is paid for, our sponsorships are cut by more than half because we don't need as much money."

Each sponsor will be asked to provide $175, which is considerably cheaper than last year's fee of $400.

"The first two years were really expensive because we had to buy all the equipment, but now it's just a matter of maintaining all the equipment we have."

During the registration, there were a number of requests to have three-year-olds play ball this year. Since they

League will organize younger players into teams are too young to play in the league, Grant Shaw took the initiative to set up a separate league for those kids.

Any parents who are interested in that league should contact Shaw at 286-4240.

"It's still in the initial stages of organization," says Duhaime. "We turned away at least 15 kids who were too young, so I'd expect they'll all join, which would make enough for a good-sized league."

Parents who wish to register their children for this league will have to attend all the games and practices. This league will provide an introduction to baseball for the younger set.

"It might be a good learning experience, and it gives them a good chance to get out and have some fun," says Duhaime. "They see their older brothers and sisters going out to play and they feel a little left out."

The Minor Baseball Association is for children who were four years old as of January 1st, up to age 14. However, this year there are about 10 or 12 kids who are 15 years old, which is just enough for one team.

"We don't know what we're going to do with them yet. Unless we can round up more players in that age group, they'll have no one to play against," says Duhaime.

"The other option is to enter that team into one of the competitive leagues, and have them play against other towns."

But the association would prefer to get more 15-year-olds involved, because the competitive leagues are expensive, with players required to wear full uniforms and having to travel.

Nine players are needed on a team, but the association generally requires anywhere from 12 to 15 players to make up for absenteeism.

Each year, players receive a t-shirt and hat, paid for by the sponsors and through the registration fee.

There is one sponsor for each team, and people who sponsored last year will get the first opportunity to sponsor this year. "But that's going really well. The sponsorships are almost covered already."

At least 26 people have agreed to coach this year. A coaching clinic will be held on April 25 and 26, all day on both days. There is a fee of $50 per person.

An umpiring clinic will be held all day on May 3.

Because it is in dire need of umpires, the association will cover the fee for the clinic, "but those taking it will be expected to be available to umpire at some games this summer," says Duhaime.

"Now that the kids are getting a little more into the game than they were initially, it's more important to have qualified umpires."

The problem is that a lot of people don't want to umpire. "Umpires have hard time, there's no doubt about that. There's no fun in being an umpire."

Even if you can't participate, baseball is a popular spectator sport. So the association wants to get people out to cheer on the teams before the season winds up on July 26.

"We go four nights a week, and every night all of the diamonds are filled," says Duhaime. "People bring their lawn chairs and coolers. It's exciting to see so much activity."

went back to Cannington for game 3.

This was definitely the game to remember from the series. The first period was all Cannington. Shots on goal for Cannington were 10 and Minden 0 and the score at the end of the first was 2-0 for Cannington.

Minden goaltender Mark Snell skated to the bench for his talk with coach Joe and Joe said; "keep playing like you are and we'll get it back for you". Did they ever.

Minden concentrated the play in Cannington's zone in the second period and managed to cut the lead by one goal as Andy Kinsman scored from Jamie Colliss.

The third was absolutely heart stopping. Minden tied it at 9:23 of the period as Ben Carpenter and Graham Neave set-up a great goal for Jordan Campbell.

Ben Carpenter scored the go-ahead goal a minute later, but to our surprise the goal was disallowed. The coaches were pacing, thinking the goal was lost but less than 40 seconds later Jamie Colliss picked the corner on a perfect set-up from Andy Kinsman. Our cheering section went wild. All of us were on our feet as we still had 7 and 1/2 minutes to hold the victory.

Great defence held Cannington back until two minutes remained and then their hot scorers broke out past our defence but Mark Snell made the game winning save preserving the victory for the team.

Congratulations to all members of the Tri-County Novice C Consolation Champs Andy Kinsman, Ben Carpenter, Jamie Colliss, Lance Aggett, Greg Vanderlip, Mark Snell, Graham Neave, Adman Tomlinson, Nicholas Mitchell, Stephen Johnson, Justin Walker and Jordan Campbell.

Thanks to our coaching staff Joe Mitchell, Kim Colliss and Dave Brown for a fun and successful year.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN, MAY WE HAVE YOUR ATTENTION, PLEASE.

The TV may be blasting in the other room, but at this moment you're proving an important point about newspaper advertising. It requires your willing participation. And your full attention. That's a claim that radio and television can't make.

And that's what makes newspaper advertising so powerful. Readers seek out newspapers. Not vice versa. They want information and entertainment. They'll search page to page until they find it. And when they do, they'll read every word. You're proving our point right now.

When people turn to their paper, they turn there with interest. Which means that's where your advertising message needs to be.

With all the choices available, it's difficult deciding how best to advertise your business. But everything becomes a little simpler when you remember one rule...

YOU GOTTA BE IN THE PAPER.

Heavy run-off blamed for last year's floods

Report says rainfall caused the Burnt River to overflow its banks in April 1991

by Jerry Grozelle

Mother Nature is being blamed for the Burnt River flood of April 9 to 12, 1991.

She dealt the area a double-whammy, in the form of two spring run-offs —one in late March and the other a couple of weeks later.

A report, which was released recently, points out that a heavy rainfall after the initial run-off period hit the lower Burnt river watershed much harder than some other areas in the region. The Burnt River gauge reported a 30-year peak because of the heavy rain concentrated in the area, making the annual peak discharge well above normal.

Bruce Kitchen, Water Control Engineer with the Trent-Severn Waterway, said: "The rain that came around the 8th and 9th of April last year was a very heavy rain and the very mild temperatures all of a sudden melted the last of the snow and ice that was in the bush."

Kitchen added that there has been more snow this winter than last but that the water flow all winter in the Burnt River system has been less than last year. The ground water doesn't seem to be as high as last year either. It's so far, so good as far as water levels this spring.

"I don't expect any kind of real trouble," Kitchen said. "Those heavy rains, when they come, can often cause trouble but there's not much you can do before hand."

He pointed out that the lakes in the upper part of the watershed were filling up normally and if the rains had been normal, they would have been full at the end of the spring.

The Trent-Severn Waterway controls the level of the lakes over the winter to stabilize the levels within certain low and high points.

Acceptable fluctuation parameters are determined for each lake in the system.

In the winter, the lakes are drawn down to certain levels in anticipation of the spring run-off. Then, ideally, as the snow melts and the spring rains add water to the system, the lake levels rise gradually to their peak levels.

"We have to fill them (the lakes)," Kitchen explained. "We can't wait in case there is a heavy rain."

Kitchen said there would be a lot of people upset if the lakes were left at a minimum level and then there wasn't enough run-off or rain to fill them up again. In that respect, the Trent-Severn Waterway personnel are stuck between a rock and a hard place. With the dry summers that have plagued the area the past several years, if water levels had been kept too low in the spring there could have been adverse effects.

In 1991, the lakes were filling up normally and when the snow was nearly gone, the lakes were approaching capacity. Kitchen said that if the area was to be hit by several days of heavy rain again, the results could be as bad or worse than last year.

"Last year wasn't the worst ever," he pointed out. "In that small area south of Kinmount it was the worst in a long time but other places have had it worse other years."

Kitchen said that March averaged four degrees Celsius colder this year than in 1991. "The way it's melting this year, more of the water is being absorbed into the ground rather than running off," he said.

The only control in any water system is with the stop logs at the dams. By adding logs it slows the water flow and taking logs out moves the water faster. Water levels are monitored several times a day from early morning to late evening.

In the Burnt River system, the reservoir lakes are mostly at the top of the system and the flooding occurred in the lower portion. So, they weren't effective in controlling the flow as much downstream.

A total of 15 dams control the water levels of the Burnt River system. The majority of those dams (13) are maintained by the Trent-Severn Waterway while the other two are the responsibility of the Ministry of Natural Resources. The MNR looks after the Salerno Lake dam and the one in Kinmount.

The Salerno Lake Dam is kept under scrutiny by the Trent-Severn personnel since it is within their patrol route. They advise the Minden MNR office if there are any problems. The dam in Kinmount was originally built to provide water to run the mill.

As an official from the Minden MNR office explained, the Kinmount dam is not a flood control structure. Since it is on a river as opposed to a lake, there is no storage potential for excess water. It's main function now that the mill is no longer operating is to maintain a water level sufficient to accommodate those people who draw water from the river for personal use in their homes.

On a positive note, there was no fisheries damage as a result of the 1991 flood. A study that was commissioned on the flood of 1991 states that the stop log structures at the reservoirs were operated to store as much water as possible during the flood.

The study found that the upstream reservoirs actually produced lower unit run-off, suggesting that these reservoirs may have reduced the peak flows running through the dams. According to the study, the major contributing factors leading to the flood were the intense rainfall in the lower Burnt River area and the inability of the headwaters to hold back sufficient run-off because of the limited available flood storage capacity.

A number of recommendations resulted from the Burnt River 1991 Flood Investigation Study. The first of five recommendations was to undertake another study to analyze the effects of non-uniform rainfall distributions which occurred in 1991 and the complex flow of water, through hydrologic modelling.

Streamflow gauges are recommended in the lower portion of the Burnt River as well as the downstream section of Union Creek to give precise information on flood flow peaks and timing.

Earlier operation of meteorological stations within the basin and improved estimates of precipitation totals and distribution are suggested.

Public education about flood hazards, specific implementation of flood forecasting, flood warning, public information mapping and flood plain management planning for the Burnt River flood-risk area (as recommended in the Burnt River Flood Damage Reduction Study of 1991) were reaffirmed.

And finally, it was recommended that the orderly planning of land use and development within the flood plain be regulated to control future flood damages. In the final analysis, if the weather co-operates, the residents of the flood-risk areas can relax and enjoy the milder temperatures of spring.

If Mother Nature decides to unleash another major downpour, they would be well advised to prepare for another flood.

Capturing nature with the colour of pastels

by Jerry Grozelle

By the age of five or six, it was apparent that Dick Griffin's interest in artwork was more than casual. That's when he sold his first work, some Christmas cards, to his grandfather.

Now, after a 40-year career in the creative end of the advertising business in Toronto, he and his wife Bette have retired. The Griffins, who have been married 44 years, moved to a scenic lot on the Gull River overlooking a rapids at Norland four years ago. They have owned the lot since 1980 and have used the site as a cottage until building their permanent home there.

Since he has retired, Dick Griffin has been able to devote more time to his passion for landscape painting. He has worked with pencil, pen, pastels and paint, but his preferred medium is pastels. During his career in advertising, Griffin employed his talents in various levels, starting as junior artist and moving up to art director, production manager and creative consultant.

That full-time occupation, along with helping Bette raise their three daughters Sandra, Barbara and Beverly (the latter two being twins), left little time for Dick to paint landscapes. He's making up for that now, sometimes creating as many as one per day for two weeks at a time. He will pack up a selection of pastels, find an interesting vantage point and spend several hours on location, going home with a finished painting.

Numerous shows in Victoria and Haliburton Counties attest to the popularity of Griffin's work. He recently won an award in the Juried Show held by the East Central Ontario Art Association. Last year a painting by Griffin of the gates of the Boyd Estate in Bobcaygeon graced the poster promoting the Kawartha Summer Theatre.

Although pastels are not the easiest to work with, Griffin likes the medium.

"It is a demanding but satisfying medium," he said.

"You are using pure colour and once you apply it to the paper it's there to stay."

Pastel is considered the purest painting material since it is basically raw powdered pigment held together with a medium of non-greasy binder to form a stick. The artist is applying pure dry colour and can see the results immediately. The history of the medium can be traced back to the sixteenth century.

Among Dick's favourite subjects are the old buildings, rocks and waters of the northern part of Victoria County. Although the Griffins have been property owners in the area since 1980, Dick's familiarity with the area dates back to the 1940s when he served as a counselor at Onondaga Camp, near Minden.

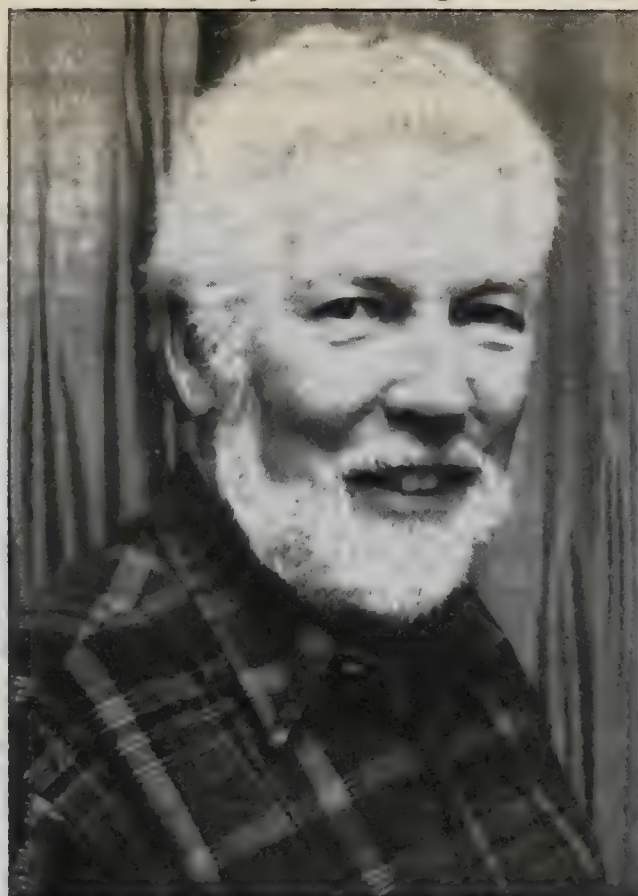

During that time, he often guided canoe trips down the Gull River past the place where he later built his retirement home. While working with the youngsters at Onondaga Camp, Dick was influenced by a fellow staff member, famous Canadian artist Tom Roberts. Dick and Bette were also frequent campers in the Haliburton Forest and Wildlife Reserve.

Dick's formal training in art took place in Toronto and at the Art Student's League of New York (ASLNY). He is a life member of the ASLNY and current President of East Central Ontario Art Association. He is also a member of Visual Arts Ontario, Arts Scarborough, The Pastel Society of Canada, The Lindsay Gallery and the Agnes Jamieson Gallery in Minden.

This year will mark the third year Dick Griffin has been a member of the Victoria County Studio Tour. The event is organized by the tour participants in an effort to promote the work of the artists. A total of 15 artisans are represented in the 1992 tour, which will be held on April 25 and 26. The '92 tour includes painters who work in various mediums, potters, stained glass workers, sculptors and an artist who specializes in handwoven toys and soft sculpture.

The studios of the various artists will be open to the public from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on both days. Anyone interested in visiting all of the studios should plan on spending both days since the locations range from Bethany, Little Britain and Fowlers Corners in the south to Lindsay, Fenelon Falls, Bobcaygeon and Norland.

Victoria County Studio Tour '92 guides, which include a map of the locations and a brief profile on each of the artists, are available in Norland at Pine N' Patches, the Post Office (Norland Trading Company) and the Riverside Inn; in Coboconk at the Liquor Store and the Doctor's Office; in Kinmount at Dettman's Variety and the Liquor Store; and in Minden at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery, Heritage Gallery and the Minden Chamber of Commerce. The guides are free. Dick Griffin's studio is located about 1/2 kilometer from Highway 503 on Nevison Drive, which is the first turn east of the bridge over the Gull River.

Using high-tech to make syrup

by Jerry Grozelle

What do you get when you combine a chemical engineer from Sarnia and an outdoors oriented man from Norland, who is adept at carpentry, mechanically inclined, and operates his own saw mill? — A formula for success in the maple syrup making business.

Brian Bartley is the chemical engineer and his father Jerry is the one who likes to work with his hands. Together, they have turned a limestone ridge covered in maple trees into a major maple syrup making operation.

The father and son duo purchased a combined 700 acres in Laxton and Digby Townships in 1982. Within a few years, the idea of tapping the resource started to take shape. The first building was erected in 1987 and production got under way in 1988.

Since then, another structure was built and the original evaporator building was enlarged and a roof was added to one side for the storage of firewood. The maple bush now sports about nine miles of pipeline, with 4,000 spiles feeding sap into five 1,000 gallon storage tanks. That represents only about a third of the trees that could be tapped.

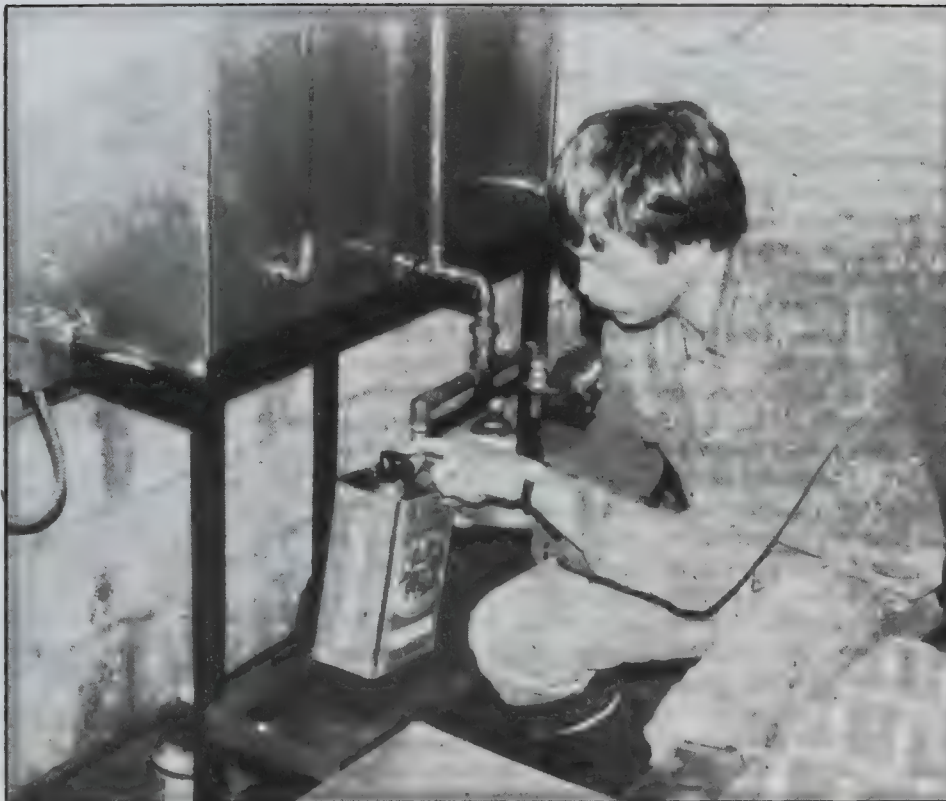

The pipeline is connected to a vacuum pump, which draws sap when Mother Nature and the gravity feed aren't fully co-operating. The suction pump draws sap into a small vacuum tank, where a turbine pump sends it to the storage tanks.

Another touch that is almost unheard of in the area is a reverse osmosis (RO) machine, which filters about 75 per cent of the water out of the sap, thereby reducing the amount of boiling necessary in the evaporator.

The RO machine is the same system that is used to take the salt out of ocean water. It contains a series of membranes that will allow water to pass through under pressure while holding back the sugar concentrate.

After passing through the RO machine, the concentrate goes into another storage tank and the permeate (which is like distilled water) goes to another vat where it is saved to wash down the RO equipment.

The concentrate is fed into a wood-fired evaporator where more water is boiled off until the syrup reaches 219 degrees Fahrenheit, which is seven degrees above the boiling point of water. A special thermometer is set every day by adjusting it in boiling water. This is necessary because of changes in atmospheric pressure.

Brian Bartley, above, has brought his expertise as a chemical engineer to the fine art of making maple syrup, in an operation he runs with his father Jerry.

When the temperature is right, the syrup is transferred into a propane-fired finisher, where the sugar content is adjusted to a tolerance of 66 to 67 per cent. From there, the syrup is passed through a filter press and then either into 25-gallon barrels, to be shipped in bulk, or to a temperature controlled canner. A water jacket keeps the canner at a constant 180 degrees F to ensure that it remains free of bacteria.

All of the syrup, whether it is sold in barrels or smaller containers, is color graded with a government approved grading set. The five different grade levels are: extra light, light, medium, amber and dark.

When the sap is running well, the operation runs 24 hours a day and in a season that lasts just a few weeks, the evaporator burns about 30 bush cords of wood.

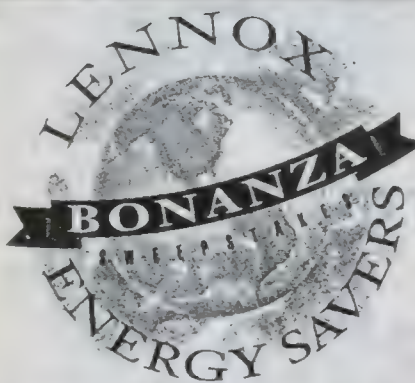

Although this type of operation ensures optimum production, it isn't an inexpensive proposition. In five years almost $80,000 has been invested in equipment. That includes buildings and $17,000 for the reverse osmosis machine, but it doesn't include labour costs.

The operation is truly a family business. Additional help is provided by family members who live in the Norland area. During peak conditions, about 10 gallons of syrup can be produced in an hour. The system is capable of producing between 800 and 1,000 gallons of maple syrup in a season. To date, the best year saw 860 gallons produced.

OLD FASHIONED SERVICE IS A PRICELESS COMPONENT OF EVERYTHING WE SELL

Our man in north Victoria

Last December a new byline began to appear in the pages of The Times on a fairly regular basis.

Some of you may have wondered who this Jerry Grozelle character is? He has been writing about everything from the municipal politics of the northern townships of Victoria County to the closing of the schools in Norland, Kinmount and Burnt River; he's been doing people profiles, general interest stories and taking pictures of parades, science fairs and the occasional scenic photo for the editorial page.

Well, perhaps an introduction is in order. Hello, I'm Jerry Grozelle. Some of you readers will already know me since I have relatives in the area and I spend a lot of time in Norland. Actually, I was born in Norland a little over four decades ago in a house across Highway 503 from the school. The old house is gone now, demolished a year or two ago.

You might wonder what qualifies this local yokel to write about the goings-on in the southern end of The Times' coverage area. Without trying to make this column look like a resume, I'll try to explain briefly.

In 1979, a small weekly paper in Lakefield took a chance on somebody with no writing experience — only a genuine desire to give it an honest try.

After about five months of writing feature articles for the Kawartha Sun, the paper's publisher decided to hire me as a full-time reporter for his sister publication, the Freelance writer Jerry Grozelle is The Times reporter in Norland and Kinmount Lakefield Leader, which was run out of the same office.

A few months later, both papers were sold to another publisher and I was promoted to sports editor. A year and a half later, I found myself taking on the responsibility as editor of The Leader. Within two years, I moved on to the daily newspaper in Lindsay where I became the sports and outdoors editor.

I stayed with The Post for almost seven years. Since the summer of 1990 I have been freelancing, and that's how I came to be a regular contributor to the pages of The Times.

Last October, Times editor Jay Kerr-Wilson called and asked if I would be interested in doing some profiles of the Reeve and Deputy-Reeve candidates in the northern townships of Victoria County. A month later, I was asked if I'd be interested in some regular input, focusing on the southern end of the paper's coverage area.

During the past 13 years as a journalist, I have had a column in an old-timers' hockey publication, I've co-edited a handbook for disabled people and for the past four or five years, I've been a field editor for Ontario Out Of Doors magazine.

I've also been an active member of the Outdoor Writers of Canada since 1982. When I'm not working, I like to spend my time outdoors. I'm an avid fisherman, hunter and conservationist. I enjoy nature photography and exploring the back roads and trails in my 4X4.

Since 1984, I have been a member of the Lindsay chapter of Ducks Unlimited Canada. This October will mark the 10th annual Ducks Unlimited Dinner and Auction in Lindsay and it will be the eighth dinner that I've helped to organize.

Besides my years as publicity chairman for the Lindsay DU chapter, I was involved in the same capacity with the Victoria County Conservation Committee for three years.

In 13 years as a writer/photographer/editor, I'd have to say that the highlight of this occupation (for me, at least) has been the people that I have met. Many have become friends. A few bring back unpleasant memories. But the vast majority have left a positive impression.

Snowmobiler still missing after going through ice

During the week of March 30 and April 5, officers of the Minden Detachment investigated numerous incidents and eight accidents with one person killed and four persons injured.

Thefts around the county

Haliburton Marine: gas bar - cigarettes and chips
Dorset: 1991 Polaris 650 RXL, Ontario Licence 668288.
Keneway Lake Rd: Citizen V.C.R., quantity of liquor.

Safe Job - Rockcliffe, Minden

A floor safe located in the Rockcliffe Hotel was peeled during the early morning hours of Saturday, April 4. A large quantity of cash including "loonies" was stolen.

All terrain vehicle accident

Ken Burrows, 34 of Stouffville received serious injuries late on April 4 when the ATV he was operating rolled over landing on him. Burrows was transported from the scene of the accident in Hindon Township to Minden and eventually airlifted to Toronto.

Missing person.

Police are investigating the disappearance of Wayne Harrison, 31, of Stanhope Township during the early hours of April 2. The snow vehicle Harrison was last seen operating was located in open water in the narrows between Little Boshkung Lake and Twelve Mile Lake. Police divers searched this area with negative results.

Impaired driver

Wayne Smith, 34 of Dysart Township has been charged with impaired driving and operating a vehicle over the legal limit of 80 mgs after being checked by police at approximately 3:30 a.m. on March 31.

Fatal car accident

Jeffrey Bounsall, 20, of Haliburton died as a result of injuries received in a single vehicle accident on the Old Buckhorn Rd. just south of Haliburton late March 30. Bounsall was the passenger in a 1984 Pontiac Fiero operated by Ken Hilliard, 19, also of Haliburton. The investigation into this accident is continuing.

A letter from Spain

During his stay in Spain, Dustin Davis has been able to travel around Europe including a visit to Berne, the capital of Switzerland (shown above).

Europe is a world away

Rotary exchange student Dustin Davis has been living in Spain since last August. The Times is pleased to present another of Dustin's articles sharing his experiences and reflections on life in Europe.

Well hello again Minden, Ontario, Canada. Time is flying here in Spain and the half-way mark of my stay has come and gone. With that in mind I thought an update would be in order, but first I should say hello to friends and family and thank the Minden Rotary Club once again for the excellent opportunity they have given me.

A lot has happened since my last article and I've learned a great deal about Spain and Europe. However, interestingly enough, by learning about these two places my understanding of Canada and North America has expanded greatly also.

I've experienced the European educational system and it has opened my eyes to the downfalls and advantages of our system back home. Here I find that school is based on a "Just the facts Man" approach. My classes here consist of copying down every word the teachers say for fifty minutes as they read from their notes which appear to have been copied from the textbooks.

My question to the world is why don't the teachers photocopy their notes, give them to the students and everyone can avoid wasting six hours in school each day.

This may seem like a negative attitude but it comes from a student who has seen his philosophy teacher reduce Socrates to point form headings on cold white paper, without a whisper of debate, analyzing strengths and weakness or a heated classroom discussion which draws in the meaning of life, personal beliefs, or even things as important as which peanut butter is the chunkiest? Isn't the debate and search for personal truth the essence of philosophy? And for that matter, isn't peanut butter important too?

But all is not wasted, I've experienced a system that demonstrates its success with math and pure sciences. The proof is in the much higher level European students reach by the end of high school.

In Canada there is a bond between students and teachers and pride in the school which just doesn't exist here, at least to the same degree. This bond is an attribute we must strive to maintain. A higher level of factual learning should be incorporated while maintaining the creative and open communication between teacher and student which fosters a less pre-programmed society.

I would also like to point out what appears to me to be the arrogance of those who legislate what Canadian students should learn. Perhaps we could give society's youth a better understanding of the real world and its issues if we studied literature of other cultures and languages instead of only English. Many of my co-students would agree that although Shakespeare was a great author he isn't the only great writer. I know that in my four years of high school I have yet to study authors other than Shakespeare. Spanish students here can tell you about french writers, English writers etc., but how many Canadian students have been exposed to great Spanish literature?

Another thing I've noticed is the profound effect North America and maybe more accurately English society is having on the rest of the world. Simply put, we're swallowing up diverse culture and heritage with every "Guns & Roses" album that crosses the ocean and with every hamburger and fries eaten instead of a traditional meal. The signs are everywhere. For example European groups are singing in English to access the huge North American and world market. In Europe every country listens to music in their own language and also in English. So if your Polish and you want to break into the Spanish and french music scene you have to learn to sing in English. Sounds a little strange to me.

In the movies and television departments small

A cultural invasion of Spain

countries can't even begin to compete with multi-million dollar North American productions. Dubbing is the name of the game here, and they dub just about everything. From the latest Spielberg film to Twin Peaks to shampoo commercials.

The effect however is that the global flow of knowledge is only in one direction. The rest of the world is continually exposed to our culture through entertainment and as the saying goes - "seeing is believing!" And I think that can be carried through to "believing is doing!" Just as a young child wants to smoke because he sees his parents smoking, the child also wants to eat burgers, listen to Rock & Roll and have presents from Santa Claus instead of Spain's traditional Three Kings. All of this because that's what the bigger than life North Americans do on T.V.

Worst of all, imagine what impressions we're putting in their minds with programs like "Married with Children", "Miami Vice" and movies like "Porky's" all of which portray typical North American attitudes and lifestyles.

With the technological advancements of communication and a world which seems to be shrinking daily, an increasing degree of monoculturalism appears inevitable.

However, my advice to people everywhere, as the alarmist that I am, is to get out and see the diversity of man soon because just as the Amazon Rain Forest is deteriorating away, so are the boundaries and distinctive characteristics which have made the history of mankind so diverse and spectacular.

Well I think we'll drift away from the heavy stuff and lighten up this article a bit. Christmas here was very enjoyable and considering it was December 15 before I saw a "Navidad" (Christmas) commercial on T.V., it also came across as less of a big business extravaganza. Christmas trees, red and green decorations and turkey are traditions here also, with differences being The Three Kings who as they did for Jesus, bring gifts to the children of Spain on January 6th. My special Christmas meal with immediate family was on Christmas Eve and a special memory was my first encounter with caviar. (It's truly amazing what you can sell the public with good marketing!!!). New Year's Eve was A lot of fun and I was introduced to the "tomando de las uvas" or "taking of the grapes". The Spanish tradition consist of eating one grape for each of the last twelve seconds of the year. The hope is that with each grape eaten comes good luck and prosperity for a month of the coming year.

Three days later (January 3) I was whisked away on a luxury double decker bus, on route to Trois Vallees (Three Valleys) in the French Alps for a week of skiing at the world's largest ski resort (190 ski lifts!) and site of the Albertville Winter Olympics. The fact that the heating system malfunctioned on the bottom floor of this luxury bus, (where I happened to be sitting), didn't dampen my spirits, but put it this way, the 16 hour bus ride felt more like 16 days! In the end it was worth the pain. The skiing was great, the weather was better and the apres-ski was the best.

Well since the Alps I've been to Barcelona for three days with my school to see the Olympic venues and visit the city. I also went to Munich, Germany for a week in early March with another high school. A side trip took us to Salzburg, Austria where we saw Mozart's house and on the way home we visited Berne, the capital of Switzerland. Special memories of the trip included seeing Mikhail Gorbachev speak to an audience in downtown Munich before entering a huge restaurant where a dinner was being held in his honour.

I've still got about three and a half months to go and I have a lot of other trips in the planning. I'm enjoying myself immensely and hope to see everyone again this summer.

Oh, buy the way, "The rain in Spain may fall mainly on the plains" but it hasn't fallen at all this year. They say it's the driest year of this century.

Hasta la vista
Dustin Davis

Clear-cutting the oceans' resources

The announcement last week by Fisheries and Oceans Minister John Crosbie that quotas for Atlantic cod will be reduced by 35 per cent is yet another reminder of the enormous changes that are taking place on our planet.

In high school during the '50s, I was taught that the oceans represented near limitless reservoirs of food.

Of course, I didn't learn that by the end of the last century, large herds of marine mammals like walrus, sea otters and sea elephants had already been exterminated along with the large whales.

Within my lifetime, many races of Pacific salmon have disappeared while pilchards on the west coast and haddock on the east, have been fished to extinction.

And now, those vast shoals of cod on the fabled Grand Banks have collapsed with frightening speed.

Piracy still flourishes in the 20th century as the oceans are literally being plundered by an international fleet of buccaners. We are air-chauvinists who treat an aqueous environment as if it is homogeneous and simple.

Thus, huge factory ships ply rich waters with thousands of kilometres of driftnets, or tow destructive dragging rigs that churn up the ocean floor.

These deadly vessels cut swaths through little-understood communities and habitats in a marine equivalent of giant clearcuts in forests.

The cod crisis illustrates our failure to integrate immediate job and profit needs with long-term protection of the fish.

So now 35,000 jobs, to say nothing of a way of life, are on the line.

Politicians propose development of the Hibernia offshore oilfield as a solution.

Yet Hibernia would provide a temporary infusion of jobs and cash that, once exhausted, will only leave people more helpless and dependent.

And the risk of oil spills in treacherous seas along "Iceberg Alley" puts the fishery at even greater risk.

It didn't have to be this way.

The fish population could have been sustained indefinitely even with human predation. But it requires a radical shift in

Reflections

by David Suzuki

perspective and priorities. It means adapting our lives and economy around the health and survival of the fish.

Thus, for example, an inland fishery relying primarily on hand line fishing from small boats could have employed far more people with far less impact on the fish. But an exploding global market, a deadly technology for finding and "harvesting" cod and the lure of big bucks may have depleted them below a critical threshold.

There are plenty of scapegoats - pollution, seals, parasites, whales, foreign fleets, bad weather, cold waters, incompetent bureaucrats or scientists. But the simple fact is the cod have been over fished and that WE HAVE NO IDEA how to manage them in a sustainable way.

Last year, only 127,000 tonnes of the allotted Canadian cod quota of 185,000 tonnes was actually caught.

The fish weren't there. Crosbie's decision to "cut" the quota by 35 per cent to 120,000 tonnes is just a token gesture that puts off the inevitable decision to shut down the cod fishery completely for a few years and simply pray the fish will come back.

The cod have to set the agenda to which we adjust.

Newfoundland fisherfolk are paying the terrible price for society's shortsightedness and their experience offers a price-less lesson to all sectors of society.

We cannot expect nature to increase its productivity to fulfill our economic and political needs.

The cod do not remain within human boundaries and so ecological distribution, not politics or economics, must determine our quotas.

The fish are a part of a complex marine ecosystem whose components and interaction we do not know or understand. So it makes no sense for example, to allow large scale "harvesting" of capelin, a basic food of cod, for a temporary bonanza of Japanese money as if it won't have an impact up the food chain.

To preserve "stocks, we always have to restrict ourselves, since our knowledge is so limited.

Small scale, long-term jobs that are rooted in the culture of local communities make far more sense than short-lived mega projects like Hibernia.

During this unavoidable transition to a sustainable way of life, Newfoundlanders must be helped with real jobs that make sense, like enforcement of the fishing moratorium and Canadian sovereignty on the oceans, rehabilitating habitat, doing more marine research, promoting energy conservation, etc.

Newfoundlanders are becoming environmental refugees, displaced by ecological disturbances, and like canaries in coal mines, are warning us that something is wrong.

We must not ignore the costly alarm they raise.

Acid rain report

The following report on precipitation events was recorded at the Ministry of Environment acid rain testing station in Dorset and compiled by Environment Canada.

This report covers the period of March 29 to April 4, 1992.

March 29, 3 cm of snow fell with a pH level of 4.7. The airpath was Michigan.

March 31, 7 cm of snow fell with a pH level of 5.2. The airpath was Wisconsin/Michigan.

April 1, 3 cm of snow fell with a pH level of 4.4. The airpath was Lake Superior/Michigan.

Environmental damage to lakes and streams is usually observed in sensitive areas regularly receiving precipitation with pH less than 4.7. pH readings less than 4.0 are serious.

Dedication recognized

The Rotary Club of Minden last week paid tribute to years of hard work and dedication by Paul Sisson. The former president of the club and long-standing member, second from left, was presented with a Paul Harris Fellowship by the members of the local service club. District Governor Don Fraser, second from right, was on hand for the special presentation. Minden president Ron Gambell, left and past president Bob Penfold assisted in presenting the award. Penfold spoke on behalf of the club, noting that Sisson had made many contributions to the local Rotary Club over the years and in doing so had been involved in the betterment of the local community. He pointed out that the award was also endorsed with a $1000 (US) donation to the Rotary Foundation, an agency of the network of service clubs which is involved in international assistance. Sisson said he was excited and pleased to be honoured by his club.

Two hunters convicted of taking deer out of season

Two Coboconk area residents have been fined a total of $4,600 and prohibited from hunting for six years after being convicted in Lindsay Provincial Court of numerous deer hunting related offences in Bexley Township.

Twelve charges were laid under the Game and Fish Act by Ministry of Natural Resources Conservation officers against Donald P. Weaver of Norland and Ines W. Cano of Coboconk following a successful surveillance operation in October 1991 involving illegal deer hunting during the closed season.

Charges included having and discharging a loaded firearm in and from a vehicle, possessing a loaded firearm on a road allowance, unlawfully possessing a firearm at night, unlawfully hunting at night and unlawfully hunting deer during the closed season.

Ines Cano was fined $1,150 and had her hunting privileges suspended for a period of one year. Donald Weaver was fined $3,450 and his hunting licence cancelled for a period of five years.

Lindsay District Conservation Officers remind the public to report any suspected illegal hunting activities by calling the Lindsay M.N.R. office at 705-324-6121 or Lindsay Area Crime-stoppers at 1-800-563-TIPS.

New Cemeteries Act is now law

With the assistance of many groups and individuals, including monument dealers, Ontario now has a new Cemeteries Act. The legislation passed with all-party support back in 1989 and was proclaimed on April 1, 1992 after a lengthy process of consultation.

The Act replaces the old outdated legislation which had not been revised since 1955. Major revisions to the act were necessary to keep up with the dramatic changes in the cemeteries marketplace since then.

The primary purpose of the new act is consumer protection. The legislation prohibits door-to-door and telephone solicitation for cemetery lots, services and supplies; it requires cemeteries to disclose important contract information to consumers; it requires all cemetery owners to be licensed and it ensures that monies paid in advance by consumers be 100 per cent trusted in order to protect consumers in the event of cemetery bankruptcy. In addition, the legislation makes cemetery owners responsible for ensuring public safety.

Under the new act, a cemetery's "perpetual care" fund will become known as its care and maintenance fund. Cemeteries will now be required to make two separate contributions to their care and maintenance fund. First, they will have to contribute 40% of the cost of each plot they sell, to provide for basic upkeep. Prior to April 1, this contribution was 35%.

In addition, cemeteries will have to deposit an additional amount each time a monument is installed (from $50 to $200 depending on the size of the marker) to provide ongoing monument maintenance, safety and preservation. Because the new legislation makes public safety the clear responsibility of cemeteries, they are now required to repair, preserve or lay down unstable monuments so that they do not endanger public safety.

The money involved in this fund is not in any way connected to government revenues. The care and maintenance fund is established by individual cemetery owners and must be held in trust by registered trust companies. The income from the fund may only be used for care and maintenance of the related monuments.

At the present time, 95% of Ontario cemeteries do not have adequate perpetual care funds to cover the costs of properly caring for and maintaining their monuments. This has contributed to monuments falling into disrepair and becoming safety hazards. If these cemeteries fail or are abandoned, they then become the responsibility of the municipality and the maintenance costs become an extra burden on municipal taxpayers. The care and maintenance fund will help prevent such circumstances in the future by ensuring that active cemeteries have the income they need for proper care and maintenance now and in the future.

Some of the other highlights of the new legislation include:

Licensing and Administration

All cemetery and crematorium owners will be licensed and pay a fee of $10 for each burial. Small cemeteries conducting fewer than 10 burials per year will be exempt.

Salespersons will now be licensed and pay an annual fee of $100.

The local municipality will now approve the location and establishment of a new cemetery.

Consumer Information/protection

Door to door and telephone solicitation for cemetery lots and services are prohibited.

Specific disclosure information must be in consumer contracts.

Cemetery and crematorium facilities must comply with health and environmental legislation.

Consumer prepaid funds must be 100% trusted.

As well, the new legislation includes procedures for unmarked burial sites and for the closing of cemeteries as well as guidelines for fair business practices.

Cemetery owners, board and interested organizations can get more information from a special Cemetery Act hot line. 416-326-8400.

Assistance available for residential rehabilitation

The Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation Residential Rehabilitation Program (RRAP) is a federal program designed to assist seniors and low-income families make necessary repairs to their homes.

Depending upon the household income and the continuous occupancy of the home for a period of 5 years, up to $5,000 could be forgivable.

Remembering the sacrifice and sorrow of Canadian soldiers at Vimy Ridge

"It was Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific on parade. I thought then...that in those few minutes I witnessed the birth of a nation." This was how Brigadier-General Alexander Ross recalled Canada's capture of Vimy Ridge, a victory that inspired a nation.

It was 75 years ago on April 9, 1917, that the Canadian Corps scaled the heights of glory. Vimy was the first place where all Canadian soldiers fighting in France came together to perform as a single unit. Separately, they had won admiration in various engagements — Ypres, Festubert, the Somme. Then, late in 1916, they were brought together to prepare for an assault on the German Army's strongest position in northwest France.

Vimy Ridge was a formidable barrier, guarding the way to the mines and factories that fuelled the enemy war effort. It enjoyed many natural defensive advantages and was reinforced regularly. In 1915 alone, more than 130,000

French soldiers had been killed or wounded in an attempt to gain the top.

Superb planning and training ensured that the Canadian Corps would not suffer the same fate. A full-scale replica of the battleground was laid out behind Canadian lines. Aerial photographs updated defensive changes. Tunnelers cut out paths under the chalky ground, allowing the infantry to start their attack 4 miles closer to their objective.

The Germans knew the Canadians were coming, but they didn't know when. One of the enemy intelligence reports noted that the Canadians were "well suited to assault and never desert."

The attack itself was preceded by a "week of suffering" during which every available Canadian gun tried to soften up the enemy defences. At 5:30 a.m. on April 9, the waiting was over. One hour before zero hour, snow fell and windblown sleet started blowing into the faces of the enemy. Resistance was weak at first, but stiffened once the Germans realized their impregnable fortress was in danger of falling. But all the training paid off. Unlike other armies which had advanced blindly en masse, the Canadians made for previously-pinpointed targets. It was a triumph of courage and tactics.

Assured as victory arrived, it did not come without cost. There were 3,000 dead out of a casualty list of 10,000. Three out of the four Victoria Crosses won at Vimy were awarded posthumously.

The Canadian victory at where others had failed. Confidence and a sense of patriotism arrived with the news from France. Abroad, Canada was applauded by world leaders. The Canadian war record, crowned by the achievements at Vimy, won for Canada a separate signature on the peace treaty ending the First World War.

Fittingly, the memorial commemorating the 60,000 Canadians killed in the First World War stands atop Vimy Ridge on land given to Canada in perpetuity by the people of France. The Vimy Memorial honours and mourns those who were the nation-builders of their time. For, as their commanding officer, General Byng, was to say later, "There they stood on Vimy Ridge that ninth day of April, 1917, men from Quebec stood shoulder to shoulder with men from Ontario, men from the Maritimes with men from British Columbia, and there was forged a nation tempered by the fires of sacrifice and hammered on the anvil of high adventure."

New labour relations law under scrutiny

by Andy Salvatori

Picture yourself sitting in one of the local coffee spots at about ten in the morning, politely eavesdropping on the large gang discussing everything from the NHL strike to the Blue Jays home opener at the Dome. If you sit there long enough and the topic of discussion of politics and government policy will surely surface. All levels of government and their policies are subject to questions and answers, agreement and disagreement - there is nothing spared as the arguments are dissected for their good and bad points.

One such proposed policy change which has recently seen increased media coverage is the change to Ontario's Labour Relations Act by our NDP government. The following are the key areas to which the proposals pertain:

- The right to organize
- Organizing activity
- Certification process
- Ontario Labour Relations Board Adjudication
- Structure and Configuration of bargaining units

- Negotiating the first Collective Agreement
- Enhanced Bargaining Rights

- Arbitration Process.
So, what's all the fuss about? Opponents of these proposed changes, namely (more on page 35)

Residents enjoy listening to readings

Mary Guillemain has volunteered to read to those who would like to listen. She came for the first time March 28 in the Tuck Shop from 1 to 2 p.m. The residents who attended thank her and enjoyed her reading very much.

Monday it was necessary for me to go to Peterborough (Terry took me), so I missed the Hyland Crest Auxiliary March meeting. I am sure they were busy planning something for the residents' benefit. In the evening, movies were shown by Allan Rice. The movies were "A Squirrel on my Shoulder" and "Winter in Ontario". Thank you Allan.

Tuesday began with chapel service by Father Salvatore accompanied by a lady and her small daughter. We thank them greatly.

The afternoon was spent making table decorations for

Senior League

by Winnifred Barnum

Easter that will soon be here. April Fool's Day we spent having a bus ride, driven by Doris Robertson, to Birch Tree Corners, Lochlin, Ingoldsby and Mr "D" Donuts for coffee and donuts. The residents enjoy this very much and we thank those who went to help make this possible, Mabel Deacon, Jean Bolt, Jean Robson and Greg Sawyer.

There was a tea party again, Maple Lake United Church provided this delicious lunch, served by Eileen Barry, Evelyn Stata, Doreen Lewis and Kay Steven. After tea Kay Steven conducted a sing-song. This was made greatly more enjoyable by Kay walking around with the microphone and having the residents each sing a section of the song being sung. Earning more of our thanks and appreciation Kay came from Bowmanville just to entertain us that day. We sincerely thank all of the ladies.

The residents thank, from the bottom of their hearts, Sharon and Russ Paul for their donation of 20 pies made by the Lioness Club ladies to Hyland Crest. It was so thoughtful of them.

As usual, Happy Hour was held in the auditorium with entertainment by six entertainers, Bill Payne, Al Blanchard, Carman Peters, George Hunt, Lloyd Madill and Neil Howe. Barmaids were Ellen Holden, Mary Guillemain, Janke Thomas and Bonnie Fullan. Barman was Don Holden. The entertainers played many different instruments and Doris played the piano. The residents and friends thank everyone immensely for giving them a happy afternoon.

Sunday, March 29, Rev. John Burgess conducted the chapel service and Alice Jones played the organ. Thank you Rev.. Burgess and Alice.

We have a new resident, Lillian Hopkins and we welcome her and hope she will be happy at Hyland Crest.

Meeting will discuss new labour legislation pro-business groups, claim that not only will they serve to strengthen unions but, more importantly, these changes will stifle investment and cost Ontario hundreds of thousands of jobs - further contributing to Ontario's economic demise.

In an effort to sort through the rhetoric and get the facts on these proposed changes and what the implications of these changes could be, the Chamber in conjunction with the Minden and Haliburton BIAs extend to the business people of the county, an invitation to attend a public meeting on the subject. The meeting will be held at the Haliburton Legion, Tuesday, April 28 at 7:00 p.m.

Our guest speaker will be Catherine Swift. Catherine is the vice-president of the Confederation of Independent Business and is well-qualified to discuss the proposed changes. The purpose of the meeting will be to inform county businesses about these changes and will assist you in deciding for yourself just how these changes will affect the way you do business - both today and in the future.

The NDP's proposed changes to Ontario's Labour Relations Act are significant. The ramifications will affect you and your business. The Chamber invites you to attend this public meeting and be informed.

You are the only one who can decide if these changes are for the betterment of your business and your future.

The April 10 winners were Grace Dixon and Orval Francis for lone hands, Mabel Trodd and Hilda Harrison with high scores and others, Mary Colman, Murray MacKinnon, May Bradbury, Marion Ingram and T. Kenneth.

There will be a Women's Aglow Fellowship meeting on Monday, April 27 at J.D. Hodgson Elementary School from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. The speaker will be Val Luery of Newmarket and the topic, "Cancer Can Be Beaten."

Interested in family ties? The Haliburton Highlands Genealogy Group meets

Wednesday, April 29 at 7:30 p.m. in Council Chambers, Minden Township office. You don't have to be a member to attend. Everyone welcome.

Velda Harrison, Lorraine and Betty visited their cousin Melinda Salmon in a Senior Citizen's home in North Bay and had a nice visit with other relatives in the area.

Saturday guests with Audrey and Bob Vick included Dorothy McElwain, Chic and Marian Minaker and Doug and Fern Butler of Lindsay.

Tuesday luncheon euchre winners at the Legion on April 7 were Willard Bridgman, Mary Wilson, Jack Weekes and lone hands going to Lil Martin. They need more people to come out to these events. For reservations for the next games on April 21, phone 286-3996.

All good wishes to the following people: Jim

Francis, Don Campbell, Mary Bussy, Ann Baker, Rosalie Harrison, Bill Campbell, Alice Morrison, Althea Gartshore, Ian McLaughlin, Jennifer Barrow, Richard McMann and Mary Colman.

Jack and Jean Dart of Oshawa attended the Dart hockey tournament last weekend in Haliburton and visited with Haliburton and Lochlin friends.

Pearl Barry enjoyed a great visit of several days with Mary Hicks.

Harold and Pearl Cowen visited last weekend with the Norman Cowens in Ottawa.

Sincere sympathy to the families and friends of the late Winnie Fader and Clinton Mitton whose funerals were last week.

At the Terrace, residents enjoyed their pot luck supper on April 3 on Jessie's birthday followed by music with the Bill Payne group. Our good wishes to Mary Busby who fell and broke her hip and is now in the local hospital.

At the euchre games on Tuesday, April 7 held in the Gelert Centre the winners included Marian Minaker for most lone hands, Isa Hilyer, Kit Schroter, Neil Cartwright and Earl Schellenberg. The next games will be held there April 21.

Susie Brown of Sir Sanford Peterborough and Nancey Bird of Georgian, Orillia have been working with Kindergarten pupils at our downtown public school for the past month.

Congratulations to Mr and Mrs Vern Boles who celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with their daughter and family in Ottawa.

Phyllis Woodcock is home and well after a short visit to Peterborough.

Minden Rotary Club is having a special time at their weekly dabber bingo on April 14. They will be donating all their proceeds to the Easter Seals Campaign and also have something for everyone. What a good idea. Good thinking, members.

Club 35 euchre winners for April 6 included Bob Lewis with most lone hands, Eleanor Bunker and Garth Windsor as high lady and man, Wally Harpur draw winner and Marion McClelland, Bill Mathews and Bert Cowen.

Coming events are Women's Institute meeting on April 15 at 2 o'clock in the Library/Cultural Centre when they decide matters about an increase in membership, so they would appreciate a good turnout that day. The opening luncheon for Haliburton District Senior games is at Deer Lodge at 12 noon. For reservations phone 489-3424 by April 22 - the date of the meal is April 29. Hopefully the next luncheon euchres at St. Paul's Parish Hall will be April 27 at 12 noon.

The snow is gradually going and next weekend, April 17 is Easter Weekend however, the piles of snow by the Recreation Centre need a good rain to get rid of them.

Seniors invited to lunch

by Donna Pacey

Want to do something different? Would you enjoy a meal away from home? Are you a senior 55 plus and/or physically challenged 18 plus? If you answered "yes" to the above questions, then Haliburton County Home Support Services' Wheels to Meals may be the answer for you.

A nutritional meal is served at four locations in Haliburton County for Wheels to Meals. The meals consist of soup or salad, entree and dessert plus a choice of tea or coffee expertly prepared by experienced cooks. All for only $6.00 per person. The next Wheels to Meals takes place in the following areas:

Tuesday, April 14, 1992 - 12 noon - Carnarvon, Zion United Church.

Wednesday, April 15, 1992 - 12 noon - Haliburton, Harvest Restaurant.

Tuesday, April 21, 1992 - 1 p.m. - Minden Legion, Minden.

Wednesday, April 22, 1992 - 12 noon - West Guilford - Rip's Sleepy Hollow.

This schedule is repeated every two weeks.

You may wish to stay after the meal to enjoy each other's friendship with a game of euchre.

For further information about Wheels to Meals, telephone Haliburton County Home Support Services at 457-2941.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Carl Francis would like to express their "thanks" to our friends, relatives and neighbours for the kindness shown to us in our recent bereavement. For all the charitable donations made in Carl's name, the phone calls food, visits, flowers, cards, and above all for just being here. A special thank you to Rev. and Mrs. Tom Gracie of Orillia for coming to be with us, to the ladies of St. Paul's Anglican Church for providing a lovely lunch. Above all to Gordon Monk of Monk Funeral Home, for all his help and services. Dr. Savery and nurses of the 3rd floor, and ambulance attendants of Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay. To all of you we will never forget your concerns.

Ruby & family

I want to thank all my relatives and friends who helped to make my birthday and the following week so happy for me. May God bless you all.

Florence Robinson.

CARDS OF THANKS

Sincere thanks to everyone for their comfort and many kindnesses at the time of our great loss and for the beautiful flowers, cards and food received. Special thanks to Mom and Marg Sawyers, Marg Prentice, Kim Sharpless, Jodi and Anne (the Campbell girls), Marian Gartshore, Carol McKelvey, Pennay Hewitt and a very special thank you to Barb Ryan and Sarah of Peterborough and our children Myles and Sandra for being such a tower of strength to us all. To Campbell's for the beautiful flower arrangements and to Gordon Monk and family for your compassion and help, Aunt Gladys and Joyce Hewitt for the lunch at the church, our grateful thanks. We will never forget any of you as we will never forget Breanna. (Nanna and Poppa)
